

ELENE GEGESHIDZE

ON THE CULTURE STUDY DEFINITION OF A NATION

Nation is a historical phenomenon. National consciousness is reflected in a human being to determine his/her personality. Religion and nationality are the characteristic signs of a person. A person's culture is indispensable from his nationality and it is his/her national culture by means of which every individual is involved in the world civilization.

The basic mechanism for maintaining of the national phenomenon and its passing from generations to the generations that follow are not merely a biological signs but the cultural legacy, traditions, and historical and natural environment. Historical and natural environment exerts great impact on the mentality and on cultural peculiarities and traditions of the people living within a particular space for centuries. Similarly, of the great importance is the co-existence of a given nation with other nations. In the modern life the relationship of nations is defined in the context of the globalization. Globalization is a dialectical process that creates transnational-social links and space, debasing local cultures and promoting the third, new cultures.