"MGZAVRULI KRIALOSANI" BY LEVAN GOTUA

Levan Gotua's "Mgzavruli Krialosani" is among those rare literary works that combine a descriptive diary as well as notes of a traveler and scholar, and talent of a writer and expressed artistic emotion. The book is thematically comprised of three parts: "In Impassable Meadows", "In Inaccessible Caves" and "On Mountain Peaks".

"Mgzavruli Krialosani" includes writer's diaries, sketches, his thoughts, emotions and impressions. The foreword provides the real goals and tasks of the writer and traveler. Travel for Levan Gotua is a kind of continuation of a creative work as a process; hence, his book contains the projection of the traveler's emotions and impressions rather than exact descriptions and objective data.
